Course Description: Political parties are the building blocks of democratic politics. Elections are the means by which our democratic governors are chosen. These are two of the foundational institutions of the dominant governmental system in the world. Why do politicians and voters create, change and destroy parties? What do citizens want from them and what affects how well parties meet these demands? How do elections shape representation? How do they help to determine the functioning of democracy? With such questions in mind, this seminar explores comparative theories of political parties in both established and new democracies.

Course Readings: We will read many chapters out of the following books. You should consider buying them. They are available at the bookstore and used copies are on Amazon. All other readings are on Canvas.

Course PodCast: We will discuss the 538 Elections PodCast each week. You are required to listen to the podcast released Thursday of the previous week for class on Tuesday. http://fivethirtyeight.com/politics/ (Also available on ITunes)

Following the Election: We will be closely following the US elections. In addition to discussing the US Presidential elections, each student will monitor a competitive US House or US Senate election. I have listed the (currently) competitive races. In the House elections, the number following the state name refers to the Congressional district in question. Once you have chosen the race that you will follow, you will be expected to research that election and report on it in the weeks before the election.

House: Maine 02, Michigan 01, Florida 18, 26; New York 01, 03, 19, 22, 24, CA 25, 31, 36, 49, 52; Utah 04, Texas 23, Iowa 03

Course Requirements & Assignments:

Students are required to complete a midterm exam, final exam, and 2 response papers (3-4 pages long). The midterm and final exams will take place in class and will mimic the structure of the Ph. D. qualifying exams. Students can write the papers on two weeks of their choice. Participation is also crucial to your grade in the course. It will be worth 20% of the total course grade and will include discussion questions. These discussion questions are due the weeks that you write a response paper (determined in a sign-up sheet in weeks 1 and 2.)

No late exams will be accepted unless special arrangements are made via a request, in writing, to me at least 2 weeks prior to the exam. Late papers will be deducted a 10 points per day for each day late and will not be accepted after the 4th day.

Assignment Schedule:

Response Papers- 2 total, timing determined by sign up sheet in class, weeks 1 and 2
Midterm Exam- October 11th
Final Exam- December 13th

Grade Breakdown:

Midterm: 30%
Final Exam: 35%
Response Papers (2): 25%
Participation: 10%

Grading Description: Written Assignments

Assignments are graded based on their academic rigor. In particular, I focus on whether the student has made an argument and how that argument is supported by logic and by the cited literature. I do not want students simply to summarize the literature but rather to fit literature into a coherent argument that both demonstrates understanding of the literature and ability to develop and defend an original argument. I use the following grading rubric, developed by the Association of American Universities to evaluate papers. The numbers at the top of the grid reflect the point value for each element of the paper.

Grading Description: Participation

Students should be prepared to participate in every class session. I will document the frequency of participation by individual students in each class period. Participation can include participation in class discussions, presentation of discussion questions, and background research on current elections. Students will present discussion questions the weeks that they write response papers. This gives students a clear opportunity to participate in the course. This semester we will follow global elections. Each student will be assigned an election to follow and report findings back to the course as a whole. I understand that different students have different ways of participating. If students are uncomfortable speaking often in class, they can participate by uploading current event articles to Sakai and presenting additional discussion questions.

Explanation of issues
Issue/potential problem to be considered is stated clearly and described comprehensively, identifying all relevant information necessary for full understanding.

Evidence
Information is taken from source(s) with enough interpretation/evaluation to develop a comprehensive analysis or synthesis.

Influence of context and assumptions
Thoroughly systematically and methodically analyzes own and others’ assumptions and carefully evaluates the relevance of context when presenting a position.

Student’s position (perspective, thesis/hypothesis)
Specific position (perspective, thesis/hypothesis) is imaginative, taking into account the complexities of an issue. Limits of position (perspective, thesis/hypothesis) are acknowledged. Others’ points of view are synthesized within position (perspective, thesis/hypothesis).

Conclusions and related outcomes (implications and consequences)
Conclusions and related outcomes (consequences and implications) are logical and reflect student’s informed evaluation and ability to place evidence and perspectives discussed in priority order.
Attendance

Students are expected to attend all classes. Students who are unable to attend class must seek permission for an excused absence from the course director or teaching assistant. Unapproved absences or late attendance for three or more classes may result in a lower grade or an “incomplete” for the course. If a student has to miss a class, he or she should arrange to get notes from a fellow student and is strongly encouraged to meet with the teaching assistant to obtain the missed material. Missed extra-credit quizzes and papers will not be available for retaking.

Scientific and Professional Ethics

The work you do in this course must be your own. Feel free to build on, react to, criticize, and analyze the ideas of others but, when you do, make it known whose ideas you are working with. You must explicitly acknowledge when your work builds on someone else’s ideas, including ideas of classmates, professors, and authors you read. If you ever have questions about drawing the line between others’ work and your own, ask the course professor who will give you guidance. Exams must be completed independently. Any collaboration on answers to exams, unless expressly permitted, may result in an automatic failing grade and possible expulsion from the Program. Any plagiarism will result in a failing grade and possible disciplinary action by CGU.

Instructor Feedback and Communication

The best way to get in touch with me is by email at Melissa.rogers@cgu.edu. I will respond to email within two business days. If you have not heard from me in two days, please contact me again and I will respond promptly.
Expectations and Logistics

All readings that can be uploaded to Canvas are available through this site. I will distribute and receive assignments through Canvas unless special arrangements are needed. All assignments should be submitted in .doc or .pdf format on Canvas. Graded assignments will be returned in class the week after they were submitted.

Accommodations for Students with Disabilities

CGU is committed to offering auxiliary aids and services to students with verifiable disabilities, in compliance with Section 504 of the Rehabilitation Act of 1973 and Title II of the Americans with Disabilities Act of 1990. To ensure that their individual needs are addressed, students with special needs are encouraged to contact the Dean of Students Office as early as possible.
